UTILITY REGULATION AND COMPETITION OFFICE; TO DISSOLVE
THE INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATIONS TECHNOLOGY
AUTHORITY AND TRANSFER ITS POWERS AND RESPONSIBILITIES
TO THE UTILITY REGULATION AND COMPETITION OFFICE; AND TO MAKE PROVISION FOR RELATED MATTERS

THE INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATIONS TECHNOLOGY
AUTHORITY (AMENDMENT) (NO. 2) BILL, 2016

MEMORANDUM OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

This Bill seeks to amend the Information and Communications Technology Authority Law (2016 Revision) in order to dissolve the Information and Communications Technology Authority (“the Authority”) and transfer its powers, functions and responsibilities to the Utility Regulation and Competition Office (“the Office”).

Clause 1 of the Bill provides for the short title and commencement of the legislation.

Clause 2 renames the principal Law as the ‘Information and Communications Technology Law’.

Clause 3 deletes from the principal Law the definitions of various terms that would no longer be used there (for example, “Board” and “director”). The clause also adds new definitions (for example, the definition of “critical ICT infrastructure”).

Clauses 4, 5 and 28 repeal Part II (other than section 9) and Schedule 1 of the principal Law, for the purpose of removing the provisions relating to -

- (a) the establishment and administration of the Authority;
- (b) the Authority’s Board of directors;
- (c) the Authority’s power to employ staff; and
- (d) the Authority’s finances.

Provision is made for the transfer of the Authority’s functions to the Office.

Clause 6 of the Bill amends section 25 of the principal Law, to provide the circumstances in which the Office may refuse to give its consent to the issue or transfer of certain shares held by persons licensed under the principal Law (“licensees”).

Clause 7 empowers the Office to regulate changes in control of media enterprises.

Clause 8 amends section 28 of the principal Law to increase the duration of a licence from fifteen years to twenty years.

Clause 9 amends section 31 of the principal Law to extend the period during which a licensee may show why a licence should not be modified.

Clauses 10, 11 and 12, respectively, repeal Parts IV, V and VI of the principal Law. Those Parts deal with anti-competitive practices, cease-and-desist orders and administrative fines and they therefore apply to the Office, instead of to the Authority. In addition, clause 11 substitutes a new Part V to make provision in respect of standards for local broadcasts, the supervision of local broadcasting and licensees' duties relating to local broadcasts.

Clauses 13 to 15, 17 and 18 of the Bill amend sections 65 to 69 of the principal Law in order to further regulate infrastructure sharing.

Clause 16 inserts into the principal Law a new section 67A that empowers the Office to consider disputes on its own initiative.

Clause 19 amends section 72 of the principal Law to require Information and Communications Technology Service Providers and Information and Communications Technology Network Providers to use best endeavours to ensure that their service providers and network providers are directly interconnected with other Information and Communications Technology network providers' networks.

Clause 20 amends section 74 of the principal Law to require licensees to connect only equipment of certain standards to public Information and Communications Technology networks and to employ only certain certified technicians.

Clause 21 repeals Part IX of the principal Law to remove the provisions dealing with the review of the Authority's decisions and appeals against those decisions. Provision is made in relation to the Office's decisions, instead of the Authority's decisions.

Clauses 22 and 23 of the Bill repeal miscellaneous provisions of the principal Law which relate to offences against the Authority. Provision is made in respect of offences committed against the Office, instead of against the Authority.

Clause 24 amends section 97 of the principal Law to enable the Office to make certain regulations (for example, in relation to infrastructure sharing) without the need for prior Ministerial approval.

Clause 25 repeals section 98 of the principal Law to remove the immunity provisions relating to the Authority. Provision is made in relation to the Office's immunity, instead of the Authority's immunity.

Clause 26 inserts into the principal Law a new Part XII which deals with the dissolution of the Authority, the transfer of its employees, and their medical and pension benefits.

Clause 27 contains transitional provisions.

Clause 28 inserts into the principal Law a new section 102 which defines various terms for the purposes of Part XII.

Clause 30 amends miscellaneous provisions of the principal Law to substitute the word “Office” for the word “Authority”, thereby transferring various powers, functions and responsibilities from the Authority to the Office.
